"Ghost Show."

In preparation for the new building which the First Bridgeport National bank will erect at the southeast corner of Main and State streets, the demolition of the buildings in State street from 105 to 123 has begun. The roofs and top stories of what were once three-story brick buildings in the section mentioned, have already been torn off. The work was halted today because of the storm but will be resumed as soon as the weather permits.

It is the intention of the directors of the First-Bridgeport National bank to erect on this site a handsome bank and office building. Although plans are not yet complete the building will probably be ten stories in height, the street floor, and possibly the floor above being used exclusively for banking purposes.

The tentative plans provide for counting rooms, etc., on the ground floor, with offices for the president, vice-president, directors and other officers on the floor above. The other floors will be rented as offices.

The building will be of marble or granite. All offices will have wide windows and the most modern elevator, heating, lighting and ventilation systems will be installed. The building on State street which are being torn down were occupied by Joe Glavin, a painter, Wheeler & Cook, plumbers, David Glavin's cutlery store and Daniel P. Keane, auctioneer.

The new building will have a frontage on State street of 173 feet and of 10 feet on Main street. On the latter thoroughfare it will extend to the store now occupied by Edward Seel, the tailor, taking in the street frontage used by Nathan Schwarz, a dealer in leather findings. This property was purchased from Dever H. Warner who owns from the corner of the Union street. It is said the price was about $15,000. For the property on State street it is said the bank paid $20,000.

Jacob P. Klein and Ellis Lester, formerly owned this property. They bought it from John P. Dunn about a dozen years ago. The price then was said to be $12,000. Mr. Dunn was a prominent wholesale dealer in cigars here, and is now in Los Angeles.

The demolition of the buildings in State street and the Pequot bank building will remove old landmarks from this site. The brownstone building at the corner formerly used by the Pequot bank was built in 1844 and remodeled about ten years ago.

The buildings in State street formerly built in 1872. For years the late William Bishop conducted an undertaking parlor in one portion of it. Next door was the famous "Ghost Show" was given. This was one of the most widely known pantomime illusions ever shown in this country and its fame extended to all parts of the country. With but little variation the performance was repeated for months in the little theater. Bridgeporters went to see it time after time and in fact people came from New York and all over New England to witness the performances.

Later when interest in the "Ghost Show" waned, Charlie Mott, a former prominent Bridgeporter, now deceased, bought the illusion and took it to Danbury.

The Earle Opera house was then given over to "variety shows," the forerunners of the present day vaudeville. Such famous players as Susie and May Irwin appeared there. They were billed as the Irwin Sisters, vaudeville-comics and they did a song and dance number in abbreviated skirts, Susie Kirwin, afterward the prima donna of the Wilbur Opera Co., sang here and Edward C. Smith, who afterward made a fortune in what is now the Park theater, appeared there with his wife in a musical act. The team was known as Smith and Carl.

It is said the directors of the bank believe that some day the proposed State street bridge must be built and a big private building at the corner will be a paying investment.

Property owners on the other corner, Henry J. Seeley, F. Lyman and George Robertson have long been anxious to tear down the old buildings in which they are doing business and build on the site from the present people's savings bank building through the Robertus building and on to State street, a handsome business office block. The property on the very corner now occupied by the Traveler Trust Co. is owned by Mrs. Wilbur Smith of New York who refuses to sell or to enter the arrangement with the other property owners to build the new building.

When the new home of the First-Bridgeport National bank is finished it will be one of the handsomest buildings in the state.

William Hood Dunwoody, Minneapolis financier, left an estate of $8,000,000.

Egypt in 1913 exported onions to the value of $1,250,357.

SECRET SERVICE MEN HERE ON TRAIL OF COUNTERFEITERS

Warn Police Dept. Against $5
Bill, Made From Good
$1 Bill.

Hot on the trail of the most dangerous and clever band of counterfeiters that has bothered the government for years, Agent Charles W. Schroder of the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the Secret Service, was a caller at police headquarters today. His purpose was both the seeking of information and the calling of attention to a $5 bill, credited with being the best imitation of those turned out by the government mints that has come to official attention. For a considerable time he has observed George H. Arnold and other associates of the detective bureau. He said that over 50 of the bills have been secured in New Jersey and Pennsylvania alone. Many banks have accepted them as genuine.

The bill in question is what is known as "washed," once a $1 bill but now retouched and the subject of additional photo engraving. It is a genuine bill paper, but shows the fiber to appear on the surface instead of being woven in. They are of the series of B and all contain some combination of the numbers, 1, 2, 3, 7, 4, 1 with a check number of C 1509. The number on the rear of the plate is 86. One of the most noticeable differences between the bill and the genuine "five" is found on the seal in the right hand corner. In this seal is a key, but instead of the customary notches the lines are noted as curving. This difference can be easily noted by the use of a reading glass.

The bills are much lighter than the original on account of the bleaching process. They have the Indian heads, but another difference is noted in this detail. The original Indian head should be dark while on the counterfeit it is light. On the reverse side of the bill the color is a bluish green instead of the usual green. The bill shown was secured from Mrs. Cora W. Nixon of 123 North Main avenue.

Agent Schroder said that many of the bills have been found in banks, being used as genuine and accepted as the same.

U. M. C. BUSY WITH AMMUNITION ORDER

Rumors to the effect that the Union Metallic Cartridge Company of this city had ordered 300,000 rounds of ammunition for 300,000 rounds of ammunition which would compel the running of the plant nights for a period of about three months, were partially denied at the factory this morning.

It was admitted, however, by Works Manager Frank O. Hoagland that the factory would work some of its departments into the night, but that complete new shifts would not be put on at this time.

To a reporter for The Farmer he said: "I think the rumors which have arisen in New York are erroneous and can easily explain to you why. In the first place these hundred million rounds of ammunition is an order much larger than ever placed. There has been one instance during the civil war that took the manufacturing company over a year to turn out. Neither the Mexican government nor the insurgents have, I believe, sufficient backing to warrant such large orders. I think if the contemplated placing of an order for 100,000 rounds was announced in Mexico City, those agents along the frontier seeking business for various firms in this country and Europe would make the quantity so that by the time the report reached New York it would be as large as you have indicated. This is probably what happened.

As to the plant never know where orders are to be exported. We have as a rule large reserve stocks of ammunition. In 1911 we were more concerned. We find ourselves today in a position where some of our lines are almost depleted and in order to maintain the proper quota on hand are compelled to work some of the departments overtime. We shall at first probably work them until 9 o'clock. I do not think at this time we will enlarge our force to any extent."

It is the general belief in New York city that the U. M. C. has been successful in securing large contracts for supplying the Mexican Federals, although the export department are naturally reticent in publishing government facts.

READ "SEVEN KEYS TO BALDPATE" IN FARMER TUESDAY

"Seven Keys to Baldpate," the dramatic and literary sensation of the year, will be published in serial form in The Farmer, beginning tomorrow.

The old Baldpate, a character entirely different from anything you have ever read. It thrills you through and through. It is melodrama without being melodrama, and ultra-sensational and at the same time absolutely true.

It's difficult for one who has not read the story or seen the wonderfully successful play to understand how this can be true. But Earl Derr Biggers, the author, has approached his theme from an angle entirely new.

If you want to read something that will hold your interest from the highest point—if you would enjoy one of the best tales of adventure, romance, and thrills that the century has brought forth—don't fail to begin "Seven Keys to Baldpate" tomorrow.

The Insular Bureau reports that $2,985,946 has been collected in Dominican customs in the last six years.

CITY WILL CLEAR SIDEWALKS AND CHARGE OWNERS

Work for Many Unemployed Is Likely Under Scheme of City Officials.

HUNDREDS OF NAMES REPORTED TO POLICE

Director Courtade's Men Will Clear Walks at Owners' Expense.

Employment for many of the idle will be provided through the city's cleaning the sidewalks where owners are delinquent. The city ordinance covering the shoveling of walks calls for their being cleaned within 24 hours after the snow ceases to fall. If the property owners do not clean the walks, themselves, the city will do so, and will assess the cost against the owners, according to the plans formulated at police headquarters today.

Multitudinous reports, received at police headquarters this morning from precinct captains as to property that still has uncleared sidewalks despite warnings given, were rapidly transcribed into a typewritten list. This afternoon it will be forwarded to Director of Public Works Jacob A. Courtade for his guidance. Through an arrangement with the police department gangs of city-employed snow shovelers will start out for the designated points. The men will work with the city responsible for their pay but planning to collect said pay from the negligent property owners, or agents.

This drastic action has been deemed necessary on account of the lax manner in which Bridgeporters have considered the city ordinance and their considering the warnings of the police as a joke. Captains of the precincts have been instructed to have their men report all uncleared walks and their reports, after one warning, will be turned in at police headquarters and thence to Director Courtade. Any dispute between owners, agents or tenants as to who is responsible for the walks can be fought out among themselves, the city only requiring that the work be done or paid for at current rates.

Superintendent Birmingham considers that there is no excuse for there being uncleared walks today on account of yesterday being Sunday with people having plenty of time to clean the walks. He says that many of the complaints concerning the property owned by prominent citizens, well able to pay for the work being done provided they do not care to do it themselves.

Returning home to dinner yesterday Superintendent Birmingham received scores of complaints from women going home from church about the condition of walks. He was unable to judge himself as to the need for some action. This morning he referred to a strip of about 100 feet of sidewalk at Washington avenue and Washington terrace, about the condition of which complaints were received in numbers last winter whenever there was a snowfall. He said that there have also been complaints this winter concerning the same piece of property and that there seems to be some question as to who is responsible.

After being blown helplessly back and forth across Long Island Sound, first in a lumbering coal barge and then in an open fisherman's dory, Capt. and Mrs. Frederick Shellhorn of 67 Elm street, this city, are admitted to the home of Benjamin Latham, a Greenport, L. I., farmer. The couple were on board the McCaffrey line barge, "Elizabeth" and were given up for lost when that craft with three others broke from the tow of the steam tug Pliny Pliske off New London harbor, late Friday night.

Eleven persons, among them four women and two children, were rescued by a crew from the Orient Point Life Saving Station late Saturday.

Mrs. Shellhorn is the daughter of Mary Bahen and the couple maintained their home at 67 Elm street. Mrs. Bahen is 80 years old. Her grandson, James Bahen, also makes his home with her.

Mrs. Bahen said today: "Capt. Shellhorn is a good man and has been in the McCaffrey line for 20 years. I knew when I was told that he was lost at sea with my daughter that if there was any chance to save her he would take it and save himself. Although I worried much I felt he would get through somehow and take her with him. I think that both her and her husband will be home within a day or two."

REORGANIZATION OF E. H. H. SMITH SILVER CO. IS UNDER WAY

That an effort is being made to reorganize the E. H. H. Silver Co. is the declaration of Receiver Henry Lee, who filed a report in the superior court today in which he spoke of a compromise to terminate the receivership. This solution will probably be reached by the aid of a larger creditor. Since the receiver was appointed several months ago, the business has been carried on as usual.

At a hearing this morning Judge Curtis allowed several claims against the company. Those ordered paid were Fletcher Engineering Co. of this city $283.33, Riverside Metal Co. $3,554.51. No action was taken on an insurance premium of $25.54.

MEMBERS OF ST. JOHN'S OFFER ON NEW RECTOR

Spirited Meeting of Legal Members Held This Afternoon to Take Action.

REV. S. F. SHERMAN CHOICE OF VESTRY

Church Membership Said to Have Strong Leaning Towards Present
Assistant.

A lively difference of opinion as to the choice of a successor to the late Rev. William H. Lewis, D.D., rector of St. John's Episcopal church, developed this afternoon when a special meeting of the church, for the legal members only was held to take action on the report of the vestry's pulpit committee.

The choice of the vestry is Rev. Stephen F. Sherman, Canon of the Cathedral of All Saints, Albany, N. Y. While the dissenters from this choice have not formulated any special candidacy, it is generally understood that among the members of the church—members in the sense that they are communicants—there is a strong leaning towards Rev. Frank B. Bigelow, the assistant rector, who has been acting in the pulpit since the death of Dr. Lewis.

The meeting this afternoon was attended by about 75. It was called to act on the report of the vestry pulpit committee in relation to securing a rector. It was predicted, when the meeting was called, that the choice of Rev. Mr. Sherman would be ratified, for the vestry committee felt confident of having sufficient votes to have his candidacy endorsed.

The call was issued by Fred Atwater, clerk of the St. John's Episcopal society. The vestry includes 15 members. E. H. Harral is senior warden, and Jonathan Godfrey, the junior warden. Other members of the board are Fred C. Nichols, Henry Atwater, Tracy B. Warren, Charles Perry, Chas. M. Cole, Hamilton S. Shelton, D. Francis Wheeler, F. W. Atwater, Chas. G. Sanford, Sanford Stoddard, Henry A. Bishop, Lewis B. Curtis and Frederick W. Hall. The pulpit committee of the vestry includes Jonathan Godfrey, chairman, Lewis B. Curtis, Tracy B. Warren and Charles B. Perry.

The sub-committee of the vestry, acting on the call to the vacant pulpit, secured the names of 50 clergymen whom they considered eligible. The endorsements of Rev. Mr. Sherman's name were especially strong, including those of the bishops of Colorado, Albany, Missouri and Connecticut. Rev. Mr. Sherman has been in his present position for three and one-half years. Prior to his call to Albany he was rector of St. Louis for five years, and for two years before that time he was in Rochester.

He is 35, married, and has two sons. He is a native of this country and in German University.

The vestry is practically solid for Mr. Sherman, while in the congregation are many who are not eligible to vote. They cannot be admitted to vote, now until the annual meeting of the vestry, the first Monday after Easter, April 13. To be admitted, a person must be a member of one of the other ecclesiastical societies, and must declare his attachment for the doctrines and discipline of the Protestant Episcopal church in the United States.

The communicants, of which there are about 900, are represented by only a small percentage in the legal membership of the church society. When the meeting was called to order this afternoon it was expected that representatives of the church society would seek to have the matter of a rector postponed until the members of the church could secure legal admission into membership after Easter.

When Clerk Atwater called the meeting to order, Mr. J. Rowley, a communicant of the church but not a legal member of the society, obtained permission to speak.

He said the legal membership of the society is only 27, out of 900 communicants in the church body, and he felt a number of the members would like to speak in opposition to Rev. Mr. Sherman. If they felt they had the right to do so.

Clarence Foote, also not a legal member, was given permission to speak. He said he did not believe the church vestry was a unit in favor of Rev. Mr. Sherman, but this statement the clerk at once corrected.

Mr. Foote said he did not believe that Rev. Mr. Sherman appealed to the body of the church. He criticized the vestry for not having called others in order to give the congregation a chance to pass on more clergymen.

Personally, he said he preferred an older man, one of more experience, "one who has found himself and is a real rector, and not a man who could be guided by anyone else but whose life had been lived in a Christian manner and not in any other way, and one who would be able to lead other rectors in Bridgeport, most of whom are young."

Mr. Godfrey at once questioned Foote's attitude. He asked if he meant to criticize Rev. Mr. Sherman. Mr. Foote said at once replied that he had no criticism to make of Mr. Sherman, personally, but spoke merely in general terms.

Mr. Atwater, indignant, said, if such statements as Mr. Foote's were to be made, he would not care to serve longer in the vestry.

The motion to endorse the call of Mr. Sherman then passed, without a dissenting voice.

DEMENTED GIRL DRAWS PISTOL IN BUSY STREET

A most sensational hold-up within sight of many pedestrians and in the heart of the business section occurred a few minutes after 11 o'clock this forenoon when Miss Ethel Francis, living at 1542 Seaview avenue, and a stenographer at the U. M. C. works, was ordered to deliver over what money she had on her person to Mary McCormack, a well known Westport resident temporarily crazed by hunger. Three times she was bewildered girl ordered to give the insane woman money. Just as the desperate woman said she was on the point of pulling the trigger, a reporter for The Farmer forced the gun away from its aim and although unable to disarm her alone was assisted by Officer Al Goulden whose attention was attracted by cries of the onlookers.

Taken to police headquarters Miss Francis was unaware of the close proximity to death which officers and emergency surgeons who examined the crazed woman testified she had so narrowly escaped. Miss McCormick was examined and pronounced probably demented, and taken to Lakeview home for close observation and further examination.

MISS FRANCIS' STORY.

It was about six minutes past 11 o'clock when Miss Francis, walking south on Main street in pursuit of some business upon which she had been sent, reached the corner of Main and State streets. As she stepped up close to me and said, "I want money."

"I said, 'I have none.' She replied, 'Yes you have, for you are dressed in furs and I am not.'"

"I did not notice that she held a gun in her hand until then, when it was pressed close to my breast and she repeated: 'Others have money and furs and automobiles and I am starving. I want your money.'"

"There were many people standing about the corner but none seemed to notice that I was in danger. I do not believe that I realized what was happening until she was pointing the gun at me. She said, 'I want money. I want money. I want money.'"

"I hurried away for I did not want to be involved in the notoriety and am sorry," said Miss Francis.

MRS. HUTCHINSON WINS FIGHT FOR BAILEY MILLIONS

Sealed Verdict Of Jury Upholds The Contention Of Bridgeport Woman
That Sister Was Incompetent

HER SHARE OF ESTATE ABOUT $400,000

Under Will As Originally Drafted Mrs. Hutchinson
Would Have Received Annuity Of
$10,000--Case Tried In White
Plains--Successful Litigant
Is Mother Of Charles
R. and Fred B. Hutchinson

White Plains, N. Y., Feb. 15.—Mrs. Anne Isabelle Hutchinson, of Bridgeport, Conn., today won her suit to set aside the will of her sister, the late Mrs. Ruth Louise Bailey, widow of James A. Bailey, long associated with P. T. Barnum in the circus business. The will left Mrs. Hutchinson an income of $10,000 a year but by setting it aside she will receive about $400,000. The estate was valued at about $4,000,000.

The verdict opened today was handed in sealed last Friday by a jury in the supreme court. The action was brought on the ground that the executrix exerted undue influence on Mrs. Bailey and that she was physically and mentally incompetent to make a will.

Mrs. Bailey died at her home in Mount Vernon, March 11, 1912.

In her will Mrs. Bailey left the bulk of the $4,000,000 left her by her husband to her brothers, Joseph T. and Theodore McCoodon, and her sister, Mrs. Anna Harper, widow of the late Dr. Joseph Harper of New York. Mr. Bailey and the McCoodon brothers were once associated in the circus business but later parted company and Joseph McCoodon sent out a show of his own in opposition to the Barnum & Bailey enterprise. The McCoodon show was a failure and he is said to have been driven out of the business by the Barnum & Bailey show.

Under Mrs. Bailey's will Mrs. Hutchinson's income from the estate would have ceased at her death. Under the sealed verdict her descendants will share in the estate. Charles R. Hutchinson has four children, Anna Louise, Charles, Fred and Mary. Under Mrs. Bailey's will, Anna Louise received a small bequest from an account in a savings bank.
